Support to Democratic Transition in the MENA Region

---

Adam Smith International (ASI) is working to support democratic transitions in Tunisia, Egypt and Libya with support from a range of bilateral and multilateral donors. ASI is looking to build the advisory facility that supports these programmes in the Middle East and North Africa (MENA) region.

ASI has openings in MENA countries for advisers to work on a range of projects that aim to support democratic transition. ASI is looking therefore to identify expert advisers, preferably with Arabic language skills, in a wide range of areas including:

- electoral processes;
- political party support;
- constitutional law;
- strengthening external accountability mechanisms including parliament and parliamentary committees;
- strengthening the rule of law;
- security and justice sector reform;
- the promotion of human rights;
- economic reform, privatisation and private sector development;
- public administration reform;
- public financial management;
- management & delivery of key government services (eg. Education, Health)
- strategic communications and public relations.

We are particularly keen to identify interested professionals from the MENA region as well as professionals from the Diasporas of MENA countries in North America, Europe and elsewhere.

All applicants should have experience in one or more of the areas listed above and very strong professional or academic qualifications from a recognised international institution (ie. from top flight universities or professional associations for lawyers / chartered accountants). It is advantageous for applicants to have experience of working within the MENA region.

If you are interested please send your CV to mena.transition@adamsmithinternational.com. Applications should be submitted as soon as possible. Please note that it is our policy to reply only to shortlisted applicants.
